Freezing to Death. Nearly a mouch ago a man was found in a Califorcia gulob almost frezer. 1. this condition he was taken to the Sisters Hospital, where it was found necessary, to save his life, to amputate the left foot at the ankle and the toe of the right. He stood the operation bravely, and in spite of a great pervous prostration be ralifed and was discharged a few days ago to batcle on crutches with the wide, wide world-an uneven warfare, indeed. His story is as tollows : "I was three miles up the guich the afternoon before, looking airor some prospect notes I had up there, and didn't start for home until quite late. I had no more than started when he snow began to fall, and in fifteen minutes the storm was in full fury. I knew the way Directions in Eleven Languages. well, but the fire ness of the storm alarmed me, and the snew fell so thick and fast that all landmarks were soon blotted on; and it was impossible to see more than twenty feet before one's tace. My principal guide had been the trail made by the parro's feet, but the thick white manile that speedily covered the earth so entirely obsoured this that I had no earthly means of knowing whether or not I was on the right path. After wandering blindly on for half an hour I became convineed that I was not, and, in feet, the extremely rough and rocky nature of the path gave me warms iog that I had streyed far from the proper route. Up to this time I had role d persistently ahead, but there I stopped, my been to the gusty wind, and tried to enimity consider the situation. Taking the ex reme supposition that I used walked to an exactly opposite direction from the right one, I could not be over four wiles from home, but in the blinding snow I had no assurance whether I would be right in walking back or forward, right or left, but finally at random chose the first, and continued my journey straight ahead. Up to this time I had felt no cold, but when I stopped to thick the warmen created by my active expresses sieu away and I began to feel severely the bining air. B.sides this the temperatue was plain y talling lower, and even my warm breath be walk d briskly on, but some her my disappears.

gan to congest in brittle ic cles to my beard and on my sourt, just in front of my mouch. utmost exertions fatted to circulate my blood and warm me as it had before. Ten minutes later I began to feel sanging pairs in my feet and nands and the numbers that it variably follows extreme cold. It was about this time that I noticed my eyes seemed sweller and the lids so heavy that I had deficulty in opening them When they were closed a coes ant succession of brilliant lights flished before me and presently these lights began to spear when they were open. In every directon I seemed to see them -gre n, purple, red, blue and golden-used with ordiculty I could trace the outline of my hand as I bo'd it before my face It I staggere I before, recled blindly now, and when I pressed my benumded fingers to my face I found it covered with frizin teers. By this time the pain is my limbs and feet had grown to the mest interse agony. The prickling sensation felt at first was gone now, and in its FERTILIZERS. place a long, steady keen pain as from a great open wound. At one time I groped my way to a little sheltered place beneath some rocks and pulled my mistens off in a vaio attempt to warm my hands by friction. The fl sh was perfectly livid and blue to places, as it it had already began to decompes . The nai's were deep blue of fish scrap, bone and potash; price $40 per and quantities of blood seemed to have solded beneath them. Finding it impossible to create any warmin, I rese to my feet and walked on, resolved to die, if I must die, in a desperate struggle. The prismatic colors had now laded before my eyes to long parallel bars that eeemed to stretca from the horizin. As I walked faster I noted, too, with joy, that the pain in faction to all those who have used them. my feet was not nearly so intense as before. attributed this to the rapid circulation of blacd, but was sadly deceived, for when I scoped down and touched my foot it responded no more to the fingers than a bleck of marble. It was protedly dead. Up to this time my mental suff rings, had equaled my physical, but with my stiffcuing my mind seemed to grow dull and terpid, too. Presently I felt no more pain and a heavy and drowsy sensation substituted itself. This grew stronger and I felt as though it would be hezven itself to sick down into one of the snew drifts and go to sleep. A most delicious sense of lassitude and tired ease began to creep over me, and it seemed as it the warm breath of summer were playing in my fact. I knew dimly and vaguely, as one koows things to a dream, that I was freez og to death, but had no care or anxiety about it whatev r. My out stretched bands struck against so nething. It was the door of a cabin-my own, although did not know it-and failing in, I rolled upon the flor. The next thing I remember was a sense of awful paid, and, opening my ayes, I could see people subbing me with snow and screamed and begged them to desist. The pain grew keener and more intense, and it minutes more would have made me a ircz: corpse. - Leadville Chronical. The best IMPORTED BROWN STOUT, LONDON PORTER and ALE can always be found as Mc BURNEY'S STORE
